

Western Quebec

Fall Colors Tour 2023

General Overview

The venue for this tour is again at the Hotel Versailles in St. Sauveur, Quebec. Looking up to Mont St. Sauveur which is part of the Laurentians.

We are again returning to the Saint-Sauveur area for the 2023 Western Quebec Fall Tour. A separate flyer has been posted on the website detailing hotel information, room rates and reservations deadline and cancellation policy.

All participants will be expected to arrive no later than Friday September 22nd. Hotel registrations normally open about 4:00 PM. There may be a general orientation meeting the Friday evening. Time and specific location will be announced separately.

The tour will consist of two driving days, the Saturday & the Sunday and 1 group meal which this year will be a Sunday luncheon. Routes will be available via GPX files off the website and via paper handouts which will be included in the tour package which you will receive either upon arrival or the Friday evening. The two days of driving will include a variety of old established roads for this tour as well as a variety of roads that you have not previously been exposed to. Regardless, each will be an adventure. And yes, for those who have asked, we will be returning to Mount Tremblant this year on the Saturday.

Timing is everything when planning a colors tour and if we get it right again then we will see an explosion of color around every bend in the road and if 2020 & 21 were an example of what to expect, you will not be disappointed. Just ask anyone from previous tours. Keep your cameras at the ready so that you go back with memories that you can share.
